London, Nov. 21. Britain's 60,000 doctors took a "strike vote" today on demands for more for their services under the National Health Plan. The British Medical Association is asking at least 80 percent of the nation's physicians to support its argument that 17/6 per year per patient is not enough.

29 DEATHS IN US DISASTER

San Francisco, Nov. 21. Rioting flood waters from the mountains of North-California chased residents from their flatland homes today. The new area of -devastation in the fourth day of the floods lay in suburban districts Marysville, near where the Yuba River pours its swollen waters into the Sacramento.

Across the lofty Sierra, the glittering little city of Reno was digging itself out of the worst flood in its history. The Truckes River, normally a small quiet stream into which divorcees traditionally toss their wedding rings, was subsiding after an unprecedented rampage that left unbelievable destruction in the heart of town and muck and debris littering the business buildings, gambling casions and hotels.

Reno gambling house proprietors, their pants rolled up and carrying pistols, guarded cash left on the tables as patrons fled the flood, National Guardsmen, carrying rifles, patrolled

American troops on the Manchurian border at Hyesanjin are doing all they can tonight to consolidate their position. Their immediate orders are "hold what you have" and at present there are no plans to move either east or west from this, the most northerly stronghold. Instead, they are bringing up reserves to strengthen the line, digging gun positions and sending out defensive patrols. They have learned a lesson from the South Koreans who dashed up to the Yalu

River unescorted and they are determined not to make this another Chosan. Although the advance cuts the enemy forces in two, there are ominous reports coming in of a fresh enemy build-up in the extreme northeast of Korea. COMMENT OF THE DAY

Deluded Peace pons partly serves the propagandist

THE Warsaw'"World Peace Congress" is producing much sound and fury well calculated to impress those people who believe that dishonourable peace la better than disputation. But to the discerning the main functions of this congress are clear enough. In the first place the "World Peace Movement" is a propagandist exploitation of the universal desire for peace designed to sap the moral capacity of the world for resistance to further Soviet expansion. Secondly it seeks by organised sabotage and subversion to paralyse: Western rearmament, made imporative by Russla's programme of imperialism, and to create a clear field for Russian military aggression at Russia's chosen time. And during the last half of the year this second aim has become more prominent. Thus the "World Peace Congress" at Stockholm last: March called for the setting : up of "peace committees at the place of work"; and the meeting of the Executive Bureau of the Communist-controlled Federation of Trade Unions at Budapest in May of this year became even more explicit when it called for "concrete action to reduce or limit armament manufacture." Needless to say such action is only to be taken by the "defenders of peace" in the free countries whose governments are automatically branded as "imperialists" and "warmongors"—all statements by the "World Peace Movement? And, let it be noted, the World Peace Movement" is at the same time calling for redoubled armaments

from Russia's sabotage of the internationalisation of atomic energy in the UN Atomic Energy Commission; partly it is directed towards neutralising the only weapon which the West has at the moment to set against Russia's huge military superiority in other weapons. But so far the success of this largescale Russian manoeuvre has been very limited outside the Iron Curtain; and the original choice of Sheffield for the second "World Peace Congress" was, perhaps, an indication that this relative failure was realised in Moscow and that the controllers of the operation felt they had to do something dramatic to galvanise the movement in the Western world—an intention now frustrated by the cool vigilance of the British government. Nevertheless, it is well to bear in mind that any major success of this "World Peace Movement" in the world would bring war immeasurably nearer: for it would remove the checks on Russian military power which now. alone stand between the world and another general war; and it would also. remove the prospect of building a new world balance of power which is the only basis now in sight on which agreement for the peaceful co-existence of the Soviet Union and the free world might be reached. It is the world crime of Communists that they exploit the very desire for peace in order to destroy the only basis on which the peace can be saved; and it is a real tragedy that some genulne peace lovers should allow The sign poticeable that at a constant and the sign of themselves to be so deluded us to do the work of the gueries of peace and blindly help in destroying the founds-

These are some of the stars of the toughest hockey league of all in the Colony, the inter-House competition at King George V School.

Here they had settled inter-House differences and taken the field as the School's Second XI. Other than for the goalkeeper, they all appeared to be under the misapprehension that the field for the match with University was only half the regulation size.

Right through the match they kept trespassing on territory that had been loaned to University for part of the afternoon and when they had finished they were two goals up. They think quite a lot of themselves and hope to finish at least second in the League.

They were, generally, a happier bunch than the First XI and they considered it rather humorous that anyone wanted to take their photograph. They were grim enough during the actual game. As they line up on the field of play, they are:

The two backs who thought they were forwards, Katherine Davies and Deidre Collar, flanking the goalkeeper, Margery Revie, a rather lonely girl through most of the afternoon.

The half-back line of Vanessa Giles, Au Lai-sheong and Pamela James. The youngest centre-half we have yet seen in the Colony is 10 years old. "Lai," they say, "was born with a hockey stick in her hand."

> The adjournment resolution said that the various measures proposed at the conference "differ so widely in their methods of operation that further examination by governments is needed."

The meeting obviously had foundered on the wide differences of viewpoint between the United States, the world's largest consumer of tin, and the producing countries, including the Belgium Congo, Malaya, Indonesia and Bolivia.

The differences principally involved the operation of a proposed buffer stock to regulate tin market and the maximum and minimum prices of tin under which the control suppring plan would operate

"Agreement upon the price question is never simple but the question has proven more than ordinarily difficult under the late 1950," U.S. delegate Clarence W. Nichols said.

Producers and consumers, he said, "proved to be far apart on effective the question of price."

Assortment Of Weapons Found On A Junk

Inspector March found six rifles, three revolvers, a pistol, two Chinese swords and over 300 rounds of assorted ammunition when he boarded a junk in Aberdeen Bay on Monday.

At Kowloon Court this morning, 52-year-old Yeung Chong-yik was fined $250 or six weeks for possession of arms. The magistrate, Mr F. X. d'Almada said, "It's only a small fine, because the Police armourer tells us that the weapons are unserviceable."

Accused of having robbed a courting couple while his accomplice held them at pistol point, Lai Keung, 20, stood trial at the Criminal Sessions this morning before Mr Justice Scholes and a jury of two women and five men.

According to Crown Counsel, Mr A. Blair-Kerr, who prosecuted, the charge of robbery with aggravation against the accused meant that more than one person took part in the robbery.

The Crown case was that two persons took part. One of them, the man who held the gun, escaped, and the other was the accused, said Mr Blair-Kerr.

She further told the Police that He said that at 9.30 p.m. on | examined both weapons and Inquiries revealed that the September 18 a fitter, Chow found them to be in good work- girl was presented by her par- Kan-yan, and his girl friend, ing order.
